Profile

My career has been shaped by one central curiosity: understanding what drives business performance and what lies behind the numbers. From product development and merchandising to commercial management and analytics, I've developed an international perspective across London, Barcelona, New York and Mexico.

At COS and ARKET, I managed and analysed commercial operations exceeding £2M in annual revenue, translating sales, customer behaviour and inventory data into business decisions. Now equipped with Power BI, SQL, Python and statistical analysis through a Data Analytics Bootcamp, I bring a commercial mindset to Business Intelligence: connecting what the data reveals with why it matters and what businesses should do next.
